The mayor personally inspected the streets today, giving particular attention to the shopping and theater district, after which he called Superintendent Guy Emerson and instructed him to keep men at work all night tonight and all day tomorrow if necessary in order to get the streets properly cleaned.

He told him to give first attention to light housekeeping. streets in the vicinity of public places, and to see to it that the streets in the vicinity of all the churches were well cleared by tomorrow morning. About 400 teams were employed in the work at noon

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald held an important conference with Building Commissioner Everett today, when they considered going before the Legislature to secure new laws relative to the plumbing of new buildings. The present plumb. ing laws are not considered aedquate, and it is probable that the law department will be asked to frame some new plumbing laws, which in turn the Legislature will be asked to pass. Previous to this conference the mayor met a delegation of West Roxbury citizens and talked over the proposed West Roxbury

The street department was seriously handicapped in the work of cleaning the streets today because of the fact that the men had to go to the street departsequently a good deal of time was lost.

Superintendent Guy C. Emerson will make an effort to have the pay system changed so that a paymaster will tour the city, distributing the envelopes to the men while they are at work. This system is in vogue in New York and meets with much approval.

There are four more meetings scheduled for Mayor Fitzgerald and the mem. bers of the new city council to attend in different sections of the city before they take up the matter of the loan

Mayor Fitzgerald is finding out what the different sections of the city desire as improvements to the tune of upward of $1,000,000 a night, the South Boston citizens going on record at their high school hall Friday evening in favor of nearly $1,500,000 worth for their district,

For the first time during the series of meetings a woman addressed the mayor and councilmen Friday night. Miss Ann E. Newell, a former teacher in the Alger school, advocated an up-to-date playground, equipped for women and children to be located on West Fifth street between D and E streets.

Under the head of "rapid transit" attention was called to the need of a subway under Fort Point channel to South station and then to Park street, extending to Broadway and then Dorchester avenue from the South station.

The matter of disposing of the Mason street property owned by the city and now used as headquarters for the school committee and for quarters for engine 36, will be decided next Thursday afternoon at a conference to be held with the mayor by the schoolhouse commission, the school committee and Chief Parker of the fire department, who believes a more desirable site can be found in Park square.

The property upon which the fire engine station is located is valued at about $175,000, while the total value of in Charlestown will be of the link pin tween the Boston & Maine and the Boston the engine house property and the school type, built of steel, with a span of 210 ton & Albany railroads.

Has a Lot of Strong Veterans Around Which to Build up a Strong Championship Nine.

MEDFORD, Mass .- The Tufts College baseball candidates are scheduled to begin their indoor work this afternoon at 2 in the baseball cage of the Goddard gymnasium. The work will be under the direction of Capt. Charles E. Dustinfor the present until the appointment of a coach for the season has been made. The battery candidates have been doing some informal limbering up for the past week, but work will begin in earnest today with the usual batting and fielding work in the cage.

No Tufts team in recent years has started upon a season with brighter prospects than is the case this year and the team should win a targe majority of for every position with the exception of catcher and the problem for the coaches ball team left the North station this morning at 9:30 for Williamstown, where the hardest and most important game of the season will be played tonight with while Williams has a clean record. A victory for the Medford team will place it in the top rank. Last year's game resulted in a 15 to 9 victory for Williams. Tufts will present its strongest lineup tonight with Wallace, the star back, at years and at least half of the time since his old position.

DARTMOUTH MEETS YALE TONIGHT HANOVER, N. H .- The Yale-Dartmouth basketball game to be played at Springfield this evening bids fair to be for the past two seasons.

one of the fastest of the year. Both teams have shown up especially strong throughout the season and much interest is centered upon the coming contest. The majority of Dartmouth supporters see victory for their team, but others are inclined to think that the Yale team will prove a hard proposition. The following men in charge of Manager Haserlot took the trip: Captain Brady, Dingle, Mullen, Mensel, Gibson, Hoban and Jones.

MANY AMERICANS CARRY OFF PRIZES IN SWISS EVENTS

New York Man Captures Many Trophies at Curling, Including Royal Caledonian Club Medal.

ST. MORITZ: Switzerland-A few years ago one would have been surprised to find any great number of Americans in Switzerland for the winter sports, but now there are hundreds, at the various resorts. St. Moritz has over 200, Davos nearly as many, while in other parts of Switzerland they are almost as numerous.

And they are giving a good account of themselves, too, taking an active part in the sporting events and by carrying off some of the big prizes, figuring prominently among the winners.

A champion has arisen among the curlers at St. Moritz in Prescott Metcalf of New York, who made good his claims as a master in the sport and astonished the Scots by beating them at their the big events and taking the medal of the Royal Caledonian Curling Club.

H. Orthwein of St. Louis, who on his bobsleigh, the Dixie, captured one of the big events last year, has this year been initiating the Grand Duke of Saxe-Weimar into the pleasure of gliding down the Cresta at a mile a minute.

The sport of ski-joring-running on skis with horses-has taken a strong hold and Americans are also very keen participants in this form of sport, among its devotees being John Wanamaker, Jr., and Miss Wanamaker. Auother New Yorker, Mrs. Frederick Swift, won the second place in an international figure skating contest here, scoring 32 points out of a total of 36, which was a remarkable achievement.

The international ice hockey championship at Les Avants was won by the English against teams from Germany, Belgium and Switzerland. It proved of great interest to Americans, because one team included four American boys who are at school here. They received unstinted praise from the spectators as well as from their competitors.

COLUMBIA AND HARVARD TIED

NEW YORK-In a most interesting gymnastic meet Columbia fought Harvard to a tie Friday night by a score of 27 to 27. The most spectacular work was Melitzer's tumbling. Acting Capt. H. T. Caryell won first place for Harvard on the horizontal. The summary:

SENIORS FIRST AT ENGLISH HIGH

The senior class won the annual interclass games of the Boston English high school in the school gymnasium Friday with a total score of 54 points. The juniors were second with 33, the sophomores third with 12 and the freshmen last with 10.

The best event of the day was the mile run. It was confidently expected that Joseph Graham, the Boston high school indoor champion, would run away with the event, but P. J. Callahan, who had not done much previous to the race, ran him a hard match and they finished

Nearly all embroideries are hand loom work—the Eyelet embroidery is all morked in twisted thread, insuring durability.

The laces used are of double thread - beautiful, strong and very serviceable.

Much of the embroidery looks as though it was done by hand.

Every detail is consistently carried out to the smallest item, even the dots in the ribbons matching the dots in the embroideries.

You can pay as much as you please for underwear, according to elaboration, but none is better made.

Voilages

Paris Blouses of Chiffon

The Voilage or Paris Blouse of embroidered and tucked chiffon. Our latest Paris letter states "to take the place of the entire waist of chiffon over net or silk so largely worn this year is the blouse, minus yoke and cuffs, to be worn over a simple lingerie or net guimpe with sleeves, The shops of the Rue de la Paix are exhibiting charming models in all shades and nearly all materials." These Blouses do not crush under the coat, and for this reason are good to wear with tailored costumes, and are a great addition to an afternoon toilette, giving the bit of color that matches or harmonizes with the suit or dress. The Chiffons are in the most beautiful shades, green, taupe, navy, walnut, rose, wistaria, light blue, also in black. The originals that recently came out from Paris were priced $25.00 to $35.00 — the reproductions placed on the market at $12.50, $15.00 to $20.00. So great has been the demand for these extremely artistic and taking French chiffon Blouses or Voilages that Chandler & Co. have had one of the French importing houses and makers of fine French novelties make up specially for them a quantity sufficient to enable them now to make the price, instead of $12.50 to $20.00,

Asked the nature of the evidence and to what legal body it is to be presented Mr. Scharton said that fie preferred not to make the facts public until the work was finished. He said that he has been engaged for several nights preparing the material already in hand and that there is considerably more work to do before the evidence will be complete.

Max Mitchell, chairman of the Boston Consumers Protest League, said he con sidered the boycott a success.

"It has been successful," he said, "because the provision dealers have learned that the public are aroused at the present high prices and are determined to have a change. A great many refrained from eating meat and we believe this has had ts effect on the provision men.

"Another important result of the boycott," said Mr. Mitchell, "is that many people have learned that they can get along with less meat than they formerly believed necessary. This is an important result, I believe."

Art, Artists and Their Work

XHIBITIONS the present week have L filled most of the galleries and some of the artists are holding studio exhibitions. At Bird's the paintings of the late George Frost of Cambridge were shown and sold late in the week. Leonard has closed a general sale, including pictures, and Monday will open with a collection of Hardwick's pictures with safes the last three days of the week. Kimball has inaugurated an exhibition from the galleries of Kraushaar of New York, containing works by Monticelli and Fantin-Latour and the modern French and Dutch schools. The Voses are showing, until the nineteenth, a joint exhibition by F. S. Church and George H. Boughton. Doll & Richards still display the old masters from the Ehrich! galleries, New York, Whistler's etchings are to be seen at the Art Museum and Ruskin's drawings are on view at the Fogg Art Museum in Cambridge.

BOSTON THEATERS NEXT WEEK. Boston-"Ben Hur."

"Ben Hur," the spectacular dramatization of Gen. Lew Wallace's book of the same name, comes to the Boston theater Monday evening for a limited engagement under the management of Klaw & Erlanger. Under the direction of the experts of this firm the piece has long had the reputation of being a masterpiece of stagecraft, and it is promised that the coming engagement will reach in every way the high standards established by this drama during its several long engagements in this city.

The play was first presented to the public at the Broadway theater, New York, Nov. 29, 1809, and it has toured the country every season since, playinglong engagements repeatedly in the larger cities and staying a week in places which usually support an attraction at most two or three nights.

Dealing with the period of the earth life of Christ Jesus, "Ben-Hur" shows the world at its most wonderful point in magnificence and wealth, for Rome ruled the world and Caesar Augustus was Emperer of the mightiest realm the earth had known. Into this time of display and pomp came the lowly Nazarene, for nost interesting and stirring dramas of Boston the season. The author has succeeded in showing what America means to a Jew as a refuge for the oppressed peoples of Europe in a most convincing and eloquent way. The leading role of David Quixano, a young Jewish immigrant, is played with force and imagination by Walker Whiteside, a finished player who is appearing here for the first time It is the utter womanliness of Miss Maude Adams' impersonation of Maggie Shand, the heroine of "What Every Woman Knows," that makes the comedy so charming. The play itself is one of Barrie's best, and he is happy in having the one woman to interpret his humorously fantastic, yet deep study of a woman's nature. Happy, too, is the selection of Richard Bennett for the part of the hard-headed young Scotch husband of Maggie. All the minor roles are illusiyely played. William T. Hodge is finding that six weeks are but a beginning for the playgoers of New England who wish to see 'The Man from Home" at the Park. The orchestra is under the stage quite often these days. Certainly no new star has come to the Park and at once established himself as a favorite in the fashion that has marked the present engagement of Mr. Hodge in this Tarkington-Wilson comedy. The play is one that can be heartily commended to everybody.

DAM NEAR EL PASO, TEXAS, WILL BE THE GREATEST IN WORLD

EL PASO, Tex .- The greatest irrigation project in the world-the building of a dam even larger than the Assuan dam in Egypt, that will cost $7,000,000 and require eight years to constructthis is the interesting feat toward the accomplishment of which the attention of many engineers today is directed.

Wide public notice was called to this great task by the recent visit of the United States senatorial irrigation committee headed by Senator Carter to the Elephant Butte dam site north of El Paso in New Mexico. The lake to be formed by the dam will be 34 miles long and two and a half miles wide and will hold the entire flow of the Rio Grande for three years.

The dam is being built between two solid rock banks and will irrigate 225,-000 acres of land in New Mexico, Texas and Mexico.

The building of the dam fulfills s treaty obligation with Mexico. That country complained for 20 years against the stoppage of the flow of the Rio Grande by denuding the Colorado watershed and the matter was finally settled by treaty, by which the United States agreed to impound the waters of the international stream and divide them with Mexico without cost to the latter

CHARCOT ANTARCTIC EXPEDITION YIELDS

LONDON-Despatches received today from Dr. J. M. Charcot, leader of the French Antarctic expedition, now at Punta Arenas on its return trip, states that the expedition made valuable discoveries of a technical nature and was "altogether satisfactory," as Dr. Charcot

The expedition, which sailed from Punta Arenas Dec. 17, 1908, got as far south as . 70 degrees, with longitude of 120 degrees west. The expedition wintered at Peterman island, which is about 68 degrees latitude south and 90 degrees longitude west. Many difficulties were experienced for a time, but Dr. Charcot persevered and finally completed his "French-Map" as far as Adelaide island, surveying a new stretch of land 120 miles long. This region was wholly barren and covered with icebergs and glaciers.

The party then pushed on to Alexander island, in latitude 69 degrees and longitude 75 degrees west. A complete map of the Antarctic region as far as Alexander island was made. After the winter during the Antarctic summer far south as 70 degrees, making a careful exploration of the Isle of Deception, near the South Shetlands covered by Bellinghausen in 1821, has been practically unknown. Dr. Charcot says the expedition was not fitted out for a dash to the pole and did not attempt to go farther south than 70 degrees. The Pourquois Pas, the vessel that carried the expedition, proved satisfactory in every way. The expedition. Dr Charcot says, was far more success ful than the one he led in 1903.

. News that M. Charcot had not reached the south pole pleased the British, who look upon the discovery of the pole as a work cut out for them. The report from the French expedition has increased the enthusiasm in the British expedition that Captain Scott is soon to lead into the

WHEN it is remembered that Spohr, Sehumann, Lindpainter and Gounod had preceded Boito in the handling of Goethe's poem there must follow more or less appreciation of what the last named has accomplished, as he had to show considerable resource to make an entirely new and interesting work. Boito himself must be studied. That he has assimilated many schools seems apparent. He was born in 1842. His mother was a Pole, his father an Italian painter. When Boito was 15 years old he was placed in the Royal Conservatory at Milan, beginning and completing his studies under Signor Mazzucato, and when still a pupil began to proper, but before the curtain rises a attract considerable attention by his triumph of seven celestial trumpets call poetical tendencies.

a sacred cantata taken from the "Song of beautiful hymn are given by the orches-Songs," following this with other canta. tra. Then the curtain slowly rises on Boito became a musical critic along with his writing of poems and music.

A poem, "Il Re Orso," was bold and unusual, and drew the regard of all classes of people-both friends and nonapprovers of innovation and so far as can be gathered from inadequate data and written statements of Boito it was his musical setting to the latter half of a political cantata, called "Greece and Poland" that caused the Italian government to become sufficiently interested to send him to Vienna, Berlin and Paris to perfect his musical education. It was at this time that he began to conceive the idea of writing the work under consideration. Boito went to Paris taking a letter of introduction from Victor Hugo to Emile de Girardin, Losing his patience over Girardin, he started for prologue ends. Poland to visit his sister. ## LINCOLN'S LOVE OF TRUTH

BY ERNEST C. MOSES.

A BRAHAM LINCOLN was born Feb. 12, 1809, in Larue county, Kentucky, then a part of Hardin county. The log cabin which was his birthplace was located on Nolin river (then called a creek), about two miles from the county seat, Hodgenville, 75 miles south of Louisville

Lincoln was of Virginian ancestry, in which the Quaker element was conspicuous and of goodly influence. He struggled Defeats youth with Disciplined through Lincoln. meager advantages in education, but with an incessant thirst for knowledge which he secured little by little through a natural impulse and a marvelous perseverence. Through young manhood and well into middle age Lincoln was fed on the bitter herbs of failure and innumerable defeats which disciplined him for the great responsibility that was finally placed on his broad shoulders.

Abraham Lincoln's nature was continnally expressed in unquenchable kindness. His religion was simple and lovable-a gospel of creedless living expressed in ope, good works and firmness in the right. It was not proven in what Lincoln said or wrote about God and the hereafter, but in what he accomplished for the benefit of his fellow-men while he was with them. His gentleness and encouragement to those with whom he came in contact were traits which revealed the inner man. An incident related in 1909 by his only surviving son, Robert T. Lincoln, will illustrate how naturally the heart of the great liberator gave out from an inexhaustible storehouse of encouragement and confidence.

Mr. Bateman, am not a Christian-God knows I would be one-but I have carefully read the Bible and I do not so understand this book," and he drew forth from his bosom a pocket New Testament. "These men well know," he continued, "that I am for freedom in the territories, freedom every where as far as the constitution and laws will permit, and that my opponents are for slavery. THE FIRST STUMP SPEECH OF LINCOLN

AT a public sale at Pappville, about 1833, Abraham Lincoln made his first stump speech, as follows:

"Fellow citizens: I presume you all know who I am. I am humble Abraham Lincoln. I have been solicited by many friends to become a candidate for the Legislature. My politics are 'short and sweet.' I am in favor of a national bank. I am in favor of the internal improvement system, and a high protective tariff. These are my sentiments and political principles. If elected I shall be thankful; if not, it will be all the same."-From "Old Stories," by T. P. O'Connor.

ADDRESS ON LINCOLN DELIVERED, TODAY II

The address of Col. L. H. Watres of scranton. Pa., at the Lincoln day service n The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, was as follows:

The privilege of addressing this audience is greatly appreciated, but I should preface what I have to say with the remark that there can be no new message concerning Abraham Lincoln. His life and character are so well known as not to require elaboration. Nevertheless, we may gather strength for ourselves by dwelling for a few minutes upon the exalted career of this great American. It is said that for 300 years after the battle of Thermopylae every child in the public schools of Greece was required to recite from memory each day the names of the 300 immortal martyrs that fell in the defense of that pass. It is appropriate that a free people should assemble one day in the year to speak the name of and to draw inspiration from the life and character of one ures in our nation's history.

It has been said that "the best teachers of humanity are the lives of great men," and we might add, of great

The Vision of a Prophet

His oratory was real because it came from the soul. His was the vision of a prophet and yet he erred when he said that Lincoln was a profound believer in ond inaugural, is certainly an immortal at Gettysburg, "that the world will little note nor long remember what he said there." The words he there uttered will last as long as literature shall endure.

He was misunderstood and misinter preted by the biggest men of his time, and his gigantic achievements were done almost alone. His sad and impressive face told a pathetic story of loneliness and of suffering. He was one of God's children who never finished his education, but kept an open mind for Truth whencesoever it

Lincoln pierced the veil and saw what others failed to see. He knew that some things that were legally right were morally wrong, and he was morally great enough to say so. He knew how our bulwarks and our towers, but for the fluid in which the body is driven. God's protecting arm." He said, "It is not our frowning battlements, our bristling sea coast, our army and our navy-these are not our reliance against tyranny. Our reliance is in the liberty which God has planted in us. Our defense is in the spirit which prizes liberty as the heritage of all men in all lands everywhere."

He knew that real knowledge could not be separate and apart from rightousness-from God's law-and that God's law must be written on the heart and stamped upon the forehead.

His preeminent characteristic was his unselfishness. In all history there is not a single record of true greatness and of a federal court outside of whose juris- real nobility but has been the result of unselfish and unswerving devotion to duty and to Truth.

It cannot be gainsaid that trade in the Republic of Venezuela is not progressing either with the United States or with any other country. The bright hopes which were indulged in at the time that General Gomez succeeded Castro have not been fulfilled. There are contentious questions at present raging between the government of Venezuela and Great Britain, upon the 30 per cent Burtax which is levied upon all British West Indian colonial imports; with the French government on the French cable question, which has resulted in one of the ministers, Senor Jose de Paul, being turned out of the cabinet; with Germany on account of a German rest dent one Theodor Hauer-being detected in organizing a counter revolution in favor of Castro; with Holland on account of the delay in ratifying the protocol concluded at the Hague; with the United States of America relative to the still-pending Bermudez asphalt question and the settlement of the Critchfield and the Orinoco claims.

Thus it will be seen that with so many of the great trading centers of the world a resolution which represents another and the dull and weak conditions in of time. in unpleasant relations with Venezuela, foreign trade is bound to suffer and suf-

Secured by a Thousand Farms

Irrigation bonds are secured by first liens on good farm lands—sometimes a thousand farms. The farms are worth usually at least four times the loan. The farms are exceedingly fertile, and are not subject to crop failures. Any one season's earnings are generally sufficient to repay the whole loan.

The bonds are additionally secured by a first mortgage on an irrigation system, in which the investment is often twice the bond issue. Some Irrigation bonds are municipal securities, which form-as do School

An Investor's Opinion

Being asked to name three requirements for a good loan, wrote as follows:

"The first thing I should desire in a farm mortgage would be to be sure of the borrower's legitimate purpose in borrowing. I should prefer that he has taken an active part in the building of barns and house or the planting of permanent trees or crops. I should never want to grant over 40% of the value of a good farm." The below mentioned are examples of the loans we offer in which we carry out these ideas:

MONITOR BOOK OF GAMES.

The Monitor prints one or two games each Saturday. Cut out and paste in blank and soon you will have a good collection.

IN the game of Step the ground I is marked off by two parallel lines a wide distance apart. One player, who is "It," stands on one of these lines, with his back to the other players, who start at the other line. The one who is "It" counts 10 rapidly, during which time the other players approach his line. As he says "Ten!" they stand still in whatever attitude they may happen to be at the moment; he turns his head quickly and calls the name of any player or players whom he sees moving. Any thus caught moving have to go back to the starting line and begin over, while the counter repeats the count of 10, and the players again move forward. The object of the game is to cross the counter's line without being seen in motion by him. The last one over changes places with the counter.

"Menagerie" is a trick in the form of a game. Those who have played the game before are taken into another room to represent the menagerie, while those who are ignorant of it remain as spectators. One of the former, chosen as exhibitor, calls the spectators, one by one, into the exhibition room, asking each as he does so what animal he prefers to see first. The spectator is led up to what looks like a cage, but when a cloth is removed he finds himself looking at his own face in a mirror. Each spectator remains in the exhibition room to laugh at those who follow. The cage can be made of chairs covered with a table-cloth or a shawl.

A Generous Aviator

Having made a monoplane and used it making a successful flight in public, A. L. Pfitzner of Hammondsport, N. Y., has set a new fashion among aviators in more ways than one, says the Worcester Telegram. He has an aeroplane that flies and makes remarkable short turns, and he invites others to look it over and use any of his ideas they choose to adapt to inventions of their own. He wants the flying machine perfected for general use, and therefore is not trying o tie up his ideas with patent rights He merely asks that others give him credit for what he has got right. His monoplane is said to be the first that has been in the air for a publicly recorded flight in the United States. It is un like all others, as described by newspaper men who saw it fly, and apparently has power to break more records.

Lawyers say that two thirds of the divorce cases rise from the discords over the question of finance. Lincoln and Duty

RIGHT and duty were the watchwords of Abraham Lincoln. Perhaps no other saying of his will outlive this: "Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith let us to the end dare to do our duty as we understand it." Lincoln's way was never a path of pleasure. Duty led him up rugged steeps. But he never faltered, and on the heights he reached he will ever stand one of the noblest figures in the history of the world.

His devotion to duty may well be emulated by all. Notwithstanding the many heavy trials he was called upon to pass through in the performance of his duty, he was always ready to extend to others a helping hand and gentle words of encouragement. His influence was comforting and cheering.

A year ago the nation observed the centenary of Lincoln's birth and honored his memory by marking the site of his earliest home. Today tribute is being paid to him in many public places and in the hearts of the people everywhere. The character of this dearly loved President of our country can be no better outlined than by quoting what other chief executives have said of him. Grant praised him as "a man of great ability, pure patriotism, unselfish nature, full of forgiveness to his enemies, bearing malice toward none." Hayes declared that "to him more than to any other man the cause of the Union and liberty is indebted for its final triumph." Garfield said that "he was one of the few great rulers whose wisdom increased with his power and whose spirit grew gentler and tenderer as his triumphs were multiplied." Cleveland termed him "a supremely great and good man." McKinley described Lincoln as "a plain, honest, manly citizen, true patriot and profound statesman." Roosevelt says that "nothing was more noteworthy in all of Lincoln's character than the way in which he combined fealty to the loftiest ideal with a thoroughly practical capacity to achieve that ideal by practical methods." Taft asserts that "we have never had a man in public life whose sense of duty was stronger."

Each of our Presidents, to a greater or less degree, has drawn forth sentiments of love and admiration from the people, but none has excited a feeling so much akin to reverence as did Abraham Lincoln. Of himself he said he depended on "the aid and enlightenment of One who is stronger and wiser than all others.

THE MORE the matter is investigated the more clearly the public sees that it is the cold storage warehouses that enable the food trusts to make their cool millions.

Growth of Automobile Industry

THE rapid development of the automobile manufacturing business in this country is probably without a parallel in industrial history. Ten times as many machines were made in the United States last year as were turned out seven years ago. In 1903 the output of cars was about 11,000, while the output in 1909 reached nearly 115,000. It is estimated that 150,000 machines will be manufactured during the current year. At an average price of $2000 their total value will amount to $300,000,000, as against a value of $22,000,000 for the output of 1903.

Our exports of automobiles are double our imports, being valued last year at $6,890,000. The average value of exported cars is now about the same as the average value of imported cars. We send our product to all quarters of the world. Canada was our largest foreign purchaser, taking $2,400,000 worth of machines, while the United Kingdom bought from us to the extent of $2,000,000. Of the 1645 machines we purchased abroad last year, 928 came from France, and 418 from Italy, only 101 being supplied to us by England. Americans were at first somewhat slow in taking hold of the motor car, when compared with the French; but now their demand is so great that manufacturers are enlarging their plants everywhere. The future of the automobile in this country is indeed bright.

Developing Nigeria

A FEW years ago, the British Cotton Growing Association stated in their annual report that "in northern Nigeria alone lies the possible salvation of Lancashire." Gov. Sir Percy Girouard, in a later report, spoke very guardedly on cotton prospects for export and emphasized the importance of meeting the requirements of the natives in this as in other directions, and of stimulating their enterprise. In an illuminating paper by

Consul W. J. Yerby of Sierra Leone, the cotton situation is referred to in the statement that native farms under the supervision of the village chiefs yield only between 75 and 100 pounds of cotton per acre, and that these farms are usually an acre in size. Beyond planting and reaping, no attention is given the farms, with the result that the bolls of cotton are small, the staple short and the quality poor. In some sections an increase of as much as 25 per cent is promised, thanks to agreements made with the headmen for extending

An interesting point was made by the acting governor of northern Nigeria when, in August last, he opened the Lucy Memorial Home for Freed Slaves, at Rumaisha, where the well-known Sudan United Mission is caring for more than 200 children. He strongly advocated the teaching of agricultural knowledge to go before book learning along with the simplest Christian teaching, not in English, but in Hausa, the great medium of all the western Sudan.

Advices from London say that under the new agreement between the British government and the British Cotton Growing Association, which includes an annual grant of $50,000 for three years, four out of the seven buying and ginning centers to be established by the association will be situated in Nigeria, namely at Illushi in the south and Lokoja (at the confluence of the Benue and Niger), Zaria and Kano in the north. Zaria is on the proposed railroad, the terminus of which is at Kano, one of the greatest commercial centers of the entire Sudan and probably the original source of Morocco leather.

This railroad, which starts from Baro on the Niger and will eventually extend 400 miles to the north, is expected to revolutionize the Sudan trade by deflecting it from the caravan routes across the Sahara, to the Niger and the Gulf of Guinea. In order to make navigation possible on the Niger, at all times, as far up as Baro, a powerful dredger has been designed. Connection with the existing Lagos railway is also planned at She, and the latter road is now being extended north of the Niger. It reached the river at Jebba, last April, the distance between Jebba and Lagos, a port west of the Niger Delta, being 306 miles. It is promised that upon the completion of this Niger system, the trip to the highlands of the Sudan will be as popular among tourists as is that over the other British railroad from Mombasa to Lake Victoria.

PRESIDENT TAFT, like a lawyer preparing his case, is awaiting the decisions of the supreme court with regard to questions of law that have arisen in connection with the prosecution of the Standard Oil Company and other trusts. The determination of the points raised in these actions will indicate very clearly how far the administration may safely go in the matter of urging upon Congress restrictive and corrective legislation with regard to the corporations, and to what extent legislation along this line enacted by Congress will stand the supreme court test. Not only the President, but his party leaders in the House and Senate, are deeply concerned in the coming decisions, for whatever their effect upon the corporations involved, they will have an important bearing upon national politics. While indicating how far the party in power may proceed in the matter of regulating the trusts, they may relieve it, perhaps, of responsibility on the one hand, or of excuse for inaction on the other.

This evening the President will speak in New York on "party pledges and how they should be kept." He has been criticized in some quarters for clinging so tenaciously to the old-fashioned idea that promises, even in politics, carry with them the obligation of fulfilment. He has found, however, and his discovery is not new, that in politics the making of promises and the ability to carry them out are two very different things. Numerous impediments have already arisen to check the progress of his reform program. He is advised that to spend time upon some of his projects would be useless. As a lawyer he is aware that, except for political effect, legislation which runs counter to the courts is folly, or worse. He wants to do right. He does not care to play the demagogue. The supreme court decisions may give him his cue.

Auditing of Town Accounts

ALL town accounts should be audited, if not at stated times, at dates not over a year apart on an average. They should be audited by an expert accountant. Auditing boards not infrequently do this work in a perfunctory way, and it is quite probable that in many instances those charged with the duty of auditing are not capable of detecting irregularities, whether the latter be intentional or otherwise. The great majority of town officers are honest. It ought not to be taken as a reflection upon an official that his accounts are gone over; it could not be if there were a law requiring periodic auditing.

President's

Three bills concerning this subject accompany the annual report of Charles F. Gettemy, director of the Massachusetts bureau of statistics. Two provide for the auditing of accounts of a city or town upon petition of a certain number of citizens. The third would have an article inserted in the warrants of the next town meetings held in this state providing for the acceptance or rejection of the act of last year relating to accounting, and if the act is accepted it would have the selectmen choose a town accountant whose duties are to be of the most comprehensive nature. This measure sets Dec. 31 as the end of the fiscal year in all the towns of the state, and provides that returns must be made to the bureau of statistics showing the financial condition of the town at the close of business on that day.

The wisdom of some general law on the matter would seem to call for no argument in its favor. The bringing to light of the fact that there were shortages in the accounts of a number of town officers in this state makes the need of such a regulation apparent. Safety to the communities requires it.

AFTER ALL, maybe it isn't so much fun to be the President of the United States. Perhaps there is more quiet, sociable satisfaction in being a non-commissioned officer in the great army of just common folks. In addressing the Washington newspaper correspondents recently, President Taft said: "There is in the White House a sense of isolation, due to the fact that generally nobody drops in. Everybody comes by engagement, and you don't have that pleasant surprise that comes from having neighbors look in on you at odd times and with a feeling that they have a right to come." There is almost of necessity a condition suggestive of loneliness attaching to every eminent, exclusive or unusual position in life. Whatever in the nature of wall or fence or social or official barrier serves to shut the crowd out tends to shut the individual in. One cannot enjoy the honor and distinction of occupying a position above the level of the multitude and at the same time feel that sense of intimate sociability that comes of touching elbows with one's fellow beings. The normal, ordinary mortal does not particularly enjoy being too much in the presence of his superiors, especially if he is expected to make the attempt of presuming to meet them on a level.

And so it is that for everyday people to meet, and enjoy the society of, the highest executive officer of the United States of America requires more tact and less self-consciousness than those who have never tried it would be likely to imagine. Perhaps the feeling that is apt to possess one making such an attempt might be compared, in a measure, to the sensation one would experience in going for a stroll with a friend who was mounted on stilts. As a matter of fact, the President would, no doubt, gladly get down from his official stilts if it were possible for him to do so, but try as he will he is powerless in the matter. He may seek to make those about him believe that he is no taller than they are; but it counts little what he may say or do; they will persist in looking up to him. Perhaps there has never been an occupant of the White House who has come nearer to meeting the people on a common level than does President Taft. But those with whom he meets cannot forget that he is the first citizen of the great

The President of the nation, whoever he may be, needs and deserves all the honest and disinterested friendliness that individuals and the public can give him.

THE bill passed by the Senate on Wednesday looking to the creation of the "Glacier National Park" in northern Montana will, if it becomes a law, help forward the cooperative plan for the establishment of an international park of about 5000 square miles along the backbone of the continent in the United States and Canada. In the discussion it was stated that negotiations were in progress having in view a similar park on the Canadian side of the international line, to connect with the proposed American reservation. The area on the American side contains sixteen glaciers, besides innumerable waterfalls and majestic bluffs thousands of feet in height. Embraced in the proposed park, which lies along the main range of the Rocky mountains, are the head waters of the Flathead river. The scenery is grand, but the section is declared to be quite uninhabitable because of its rugged topography. Its setting apart will add another to the permanent attractions of this country for the traveler. .

General headquarters were established last month in Washington by the American Civic Association, one of whose objects is the creation of a national park at Niagara Falls. New York has already added greatly to its park reservations this year by the gifts of land along the Hudson river by Mrs. Harriman and others. These donations have been reenforced by the contribution of 8000 acres adjoining, which the family of Abram S. Hewitt has made to New Jersey on the condition that the state provide for the improvement and maintenance of the property. Thus one generous gift stimulates others. The territory turned over to New York state embraces about 45,000 acres, and this along with the New Jersey tract will provide for a park from New York city to Newburgh, a distance of over sixty miles, varying from a quarter of a mile to twelve miles in width.

THE rather unsettled business conditions which have prevailed for the past few weeks have been due to various causes all of which doubtless will be eliminated sooner or later as disturbing factors. The one most dwelt upon in commercial circles is the proposed federal supervision of the corporations. It has been pertinently remarked, however, that if the national banks of the country can accept governmental regulation and present statements of condition upon the call of the comptroller without feeling any embarrassment by the publicity the large corporations should be willing to come under the same supervision without detriment either to their "feelings" or the welfare of the business. The first effects of the proposed federal incorporation probably have been discounted already and corporations will proceed to adjust themselves to the new conditions. The tariff changes which had somewhat of a disturbing effect, the threatened labor troubles, the consumers' meat boycott and lesser elements have lost much of their influence as disturbers of business. Commerce is bound to push forward in spite of the bears in Wall street or the politicians at Washington and no amount of stock manipulation such as has been witnessed during the past four or five weeks is going to act as a permanent hindrance. The unsettled conditions of business can be nothing more than temporary so long as the fundamentals are as sound as they are at present. With the financial condition of the government growing daily better and money rates in all financial centers easy no amount of pessimism or bearish activity in the stock market can long delay the nward march of industry. The national government had in gold holdings July 1, 1896, $599,597,964. On Feb. 1, 1910, the amount of gold in the United States treasury was $1,639,962,795. This is a gain of more than a thousand millions in less than fourteen years. Bank deposits have been increasing in every section of the country. There is an abundance of money everywhere and however sensitive the money market may be at times rates have continued moderately easy throughout the recent flurry in Wall street. The further reduction in the Bank of England discount rate from three and one half to three per cent and a corresponding reduction in the discount rate of the Imperial Bank of Germany this week reflect the easier tendency of money in European financial centers.

The report of the Copper Producers Association for the month of January issued this week showing a reduction in the surplus stocks of over forty-three million pounds was one of the best that has been issued since the association was formed so far as its influence upon the metal trade is concerned. The most gratifying feature of the statement was the large deliveries for the month, aggregating nearly one hundred and sixty million pounds, the largest on record.

PERHAPS the politicians who are proposing Mr. Loeb as a successor for Governor Hughes think that the customs officer would be a good collector of votes, too.

JUDGING from the attention and space our Canadian contemporaries are giving to the subject, the high-cost-of-living problem is one of fully as much concern on the other side of the border as it is on this. We find the Ottawa Citizen remarking, for instance, that in spite of all that is said about the farmers, the combines, protection, exportation, speculation, and so forth, it looks very much as if the nub of the matter lay in the fact that prices are high because eatables are scarcer than they ought to be.

Not only does the Citizen give us this simple and satisfying lesson in economics, but it adds a word or two well worthy of quotation. After holding that the present tendency toward high prices is universal, and due to causes which are of universal operation, it says, in reply to the question: "What will be the ultimate effect of high prices?"-

Simply that the prosperity of the farming community will induce more people to engage in it, and those who are already following the trade to put forth stronger efforts to produce more. That is the reflex movement-the opposite awing of the peudulum, as it were. It takes considerable time to make the change, but when it is made the effect will be to lower prices.

Whether this statement should be regarded as optimistic depends largely on whether the person reading it wants low or high prices. But whether optimistic or not, it is doubtless true.
